“Precious pearl in an even more precious casket”: this is how Antonio Fogazzaro, in 1890, described the natural treasures of Molveno.

And so the lake got compared, for its extraordinary beauty, to a pearl enclosed in the splendid mountains of the Brenta Dolomites. More than a century has passed and the scenery that can be admired by the Molveno visitors maintains its unchanged charm. This small farmer town, visited by the Poet has become an aspired destination for numerous guests and it's development has been carried on in respect of the beautiful natural scenery in which it is located. Molveno is today a touristic area able to satisfy the pleasures and the needs of any visitor.
